

MONDAY OCTOBER 10. 1745.

Since our last arriv'd a Mail from Holland, and thence due from France.

Petersburgh, September 25.

General During arriv'd here lately from Stockholm, and demand'd of her Imperial Majesty, in the Name of the King and States of Sweden, that the Succours under the Command of General Keith, consisting of 30 Gallies, and a considerable Number of Concarbasses, with nine Regiments on board, and which, at the Request of Sweden, were to have Winter'd at Helsingfors, should repair directly to Stockholm, and Winter there. Upon this a grand Council of War was immediately held, in which it was resolv'd to grant the Swedes also in this Request; and Orders, for that Purpose, were issued accordingly. In pursuance of which, Directions have been sent to the Magazines of this City, and Revel, to furnish them instantly with Provisions sufficient to maintain them to the Month of July next. Five Regiments of Foot, two of Dragoons, and 1000 Don Cossacks, that were on their March from Finland, have been directed to Winter there; and to obey such Orders as the King of Sweden should send them. Her Imperial Majesty also gave Assurances to General During, that she would constantly keep a Body of 30 or 40,000 Men on the Frontiers, ready to act in Favour of the Swedes, whenever it should be necessary. But her Majesty declared at the same time, that she desired her Troops might be consider'd only as Auxiliaries, as having no Intention to break with any Foreign Power, unless first track'd.

Stockholm, September 23. O. S. They are making here all the necessary Preparations to oppose an Invasion. His Swedish Majesty intending to command the Army in Person, Orders are given for his Field Equipage to set out To-morrow; and Admiral Ridenholpe has been sent in a Yacht, to meet General Keith, who is daily expected with the Russian Gallies, and the 10,000 Men under his Command. The Evening before last arriv'd here Senator Cedercreutz, and M. Noeken, the two Swedish Plenipotentiaries at the Congress of Abo.

Copenhagen, October 8. The Transports, with the Artillery from Holstein, are all safely arriv'd here, tho' they were separated and dispersed in a Storm. They have landed the Field-pieces, but the heavy Cannon is still kept on board. The Russian Frigate, stranded lately upon the Life of Anholt, is utterly lost, but the Men are saved. Four or five Men of War belonging to the dispersed Squadron of Archangel, which consisted of nine Sail, have dropt in here, and lie now at Anchor before this Place, where they are treated in a very friendly Manner.

Hamburg, October 8. This Morning we receiv'd certain Advice, that his Royal Swedish Highness, Duke Adolphus Frederick of Holstein, landed safely at Ystad the 1st of this Month, and was set out from thence for Stockholm by Land. Wellwishes from Copenhagen, that several Foreign Courts have interposed pretty warmly, in order, if possible, to prevent the War from breaking out between Sweden and Denmark; and that his Prussian Majesty had particularly declared, that he was extremely offended at the Report spread abroad, as if he had infligated, or encouraged this War; whereas it gave him more Concern than any other Potentate whatever, on account of the Vicinity of his Territories in Prussia and Pomerania; and that therefore if it did break out, notwithstanding the Tender made of his good Offices, he would think himself oblig'd to take a Share therein, by assisting the injured Party; and that thus much he had thought fit previously to declare, that neither Court might pretend to be surpris'd, but be able to take their Measures accordingly.

Rome, September 14. We are inform'd from Civita Vecchia, that since the Centinel of that Garrison had discover'd the Attempt of the English Men of War, to set fire to the Spanish Shebecks in that Port, the latter had taken the Opportunity of a favourable Gale of Wind, in the Night-time, to sail thence back for Majores. The Spaniards have introduced into the Fortresses of Civita Castellana, belonging to the Pope, the Artillery and Military Stores landed by the said Shebecks, and left a Detachment of Soldiers to guard them. On the 11th. Count Spada, the Great Duke of Tuscany's Minister at this Court, was taken ill of an Apopleckick Fit, and died on the 13th. On the 12th the Pope held a Publick Consistory, in which he gave the Hats to the new Cardinals; then declared M. Simonetti, his Nuncio at Naples, Governor of Rome, and promoted several Prelates to the many Posts become vacant by the late Promotion of Cardinals. On the 13th the Committee of Health held a Consultation, in order to reinforce the Line towards the Adriatick, as Notice they had received, that some few Days ago, about 70 Persons had forced the Line in Calabria, and brought the Sickness to Bova and Montebello, about five Miles from the Line; but were prevented going farther, and put into Confinement.

Florence, September 24. In the last Week the Armies in Lombardy have made some Motions: Large Parties of Crovians and Hussars advanced to the Neighbourhood of Bologna, on Notice that Parties of the Spaniards had come as far as Castle St. Pietro, his said, to elcorte some Baggage of the Duke of Modena. These Detachments are retired since to their respective Armies, which continue in their former Situations. Marshal Traun, after having quitted and delivered the Charge of the Austrian Army to Prince Lobkowitz, retired to Padoua, on his Journey to Vienna. Among other Marks of Distinction, the King of Sardinia sent him his Picture set with Jewels, valued at about 8000 Crowns. A Deputation from the Senate of Bologna was sent to compliment Prince Lobkowitz, at his Head-Quarters at Carpi.

Berne, October 5. On the 24th of last Month, the First Column of the Army, under the Command of Don Philip, began its March, consisting of 15 Battalions of Spanish, and 12 Battalions of French Troops, neither of them near compleat. The Second Column, with the Infant, was preparing to follow. By Letters from Chamberbury, of the 30th of September, the whole Army was then in full March, and it was expected there would be an Action the next Day, between them and the Piedmontese, who were ready to receive them. The Intention of the Spaniards seems to be, to penetrate thro' the County of Nice. By Letters from Prince Charles's Army, the new-made Boats, to form a Bridge, were all ready on the 30th inst; and had been carried to different Places along the Rhine. On the Day following there happened a smart Action between 150 Volunteers of Prince Waldeck's Regiment, and some French Soldiers posted in a new-built Fort, opposite to Rheinwiller. The Volunteers dislodged the French; and 5 or 6000 more French Troops, that came to their Assistance, were very ill-treated by the Austrian Cannon; but their Loss is not exactly known.

Vienna, October 3. On the 30th of last Month, in the Morning, a great Council of State was held in her Majesty's Presence; who afterwards set out, on Horseback, for the Castle of Schonbourn, where her Majesty dined at a Table of 60 Covers. Orders have been given for levying Recruits; in which we proceed so happily, that we make no Question of completing all the Regiments in the Service by the 1st of March. A Report prevails, that Orders have been sent to his Royal Highness Prince Charles, that in case he cannot pass the Rhine by the 10th, he should put his Army into Winter Quarters, but as yet we do not certainly know where. Some believe that the Cavalry will return into Bavaria; and others, that both Horse and Foot will remain in the Brigades, and receive their Provisions from that Electorate. There is a third Opinion, which is, that 10,000 of our Troops will take Winter Quarters in the Electorate of Cologne; Count Cobenzel having been, for some time, negotiating that Point with the Elector.

Frankfort, Octob. 10. The Day before Yesterday there arriv'd 60 Horses, and 20 mny Mules, from the Army of the Allies, laden with the Baggage of his Britannick Majesty; and Yesterday they continued their Route to Hanover. His Majesty will leave the Army on the 15th, in order to return to this City. We expected that the Army of the Allies would have performed something considerable; but it seems they have been prevented by the great Scarcity of Forage and Provisions; so that the next News we hear, will be, in all probability, their going into Winter Quarters, which we already settled, and are to be at along the Rhine. Prince Charles is to take his Winter Quarters in Suabia, after leaving a great Detachment of Irregular Troops in the Black Forest. The Report is grown stronger, that the Hussars have been so lucky as to slip between Huguemus and Deuxgonts into Lorrain, and to have made themselves Masters of Biehe, which is a Post of very great Importance. There are still some Conferences carried on between the Imperial Court and the Allies; but according to all Appearance, they are intended only for Amusement on both Sides.

Hague, October 16. The Duke of Marlborough arriv'd here lately, and went instantly to pay his Compliments to the Earl of Stair, who received him with the utmost Esteem and Affection. There was a Minister more essent'd than the Field-Marshal; and it is thought, that he will prevail upon the States to make a new Promotion, and a new Augmentation of their Forces; but this cannot take Place till towards the latter End of the Year. About the same time, it is supposed, a Retrolition will be taken, whether we shall, or shall not, accede to the last triple Alliance concluded at Worms, between their Majesties of Great Britain, Hungary, and Sardinia.

Extrait from the Paris Almanach.

Paris, October 16. We are assured, that Prince Charles paid a Visit to the King of Great Britain, in order to confer with him on the present State of Affairs; and that they parted very little satisfied with each other's Conduct.

As there has been no such Meeting, it is evident that this Writer's Fiction is intended purely to flatter the People at Paris, and to hinder them from murmuring, as they do, at the unlucky Consequences of the War.

Six thousand Men from the Garrison of Metz, are marched to join the Army on the Rhine.

The Count de Saxe is still at Lauterbourg, and has lately assured the Marquis Noailles, that, without further Assistance, he will be accountable for the Preservation of those Lines.

It is very strongly reported, that Prince Charles has marched down the Rhine, towards Kel, 15 Leagues below Rheinwiller. Forage is become extremely scarce in the Army of that Prince, as well as fresh Provisions, Bread, and all other Estates whatsoever; notwithstanding large Quantities of Flour have been transported out of Suabia, and Multitudes of Oxen and Sheep from Hungary.

M. Noailles was to go on the 7th to Strasbourg, in order to dine with the Cardinal de Rohan.

The Allies, who were advancing on the Side of Weissenberg, in order to make a Diversion, and facilitate Prince Charles's Passage of the Rhine, finding their Design discover'd and disappointed, have thought proper to retreat.

The King of Great Britain's Equipage, his Chancery, and Military Chest, march'd first.

On the 10th the English and Dutch were to begin their March, in order to take their Winter Quarters in the Austrian Netherlands; the Hanoverians and Hessians are to return home.

The D. of Artemberg is to remain on the Rhine till he receives further Orders. The Army of M. Noailles will immediately move downwards, towards the Moselle, in order to observe the English in their Retreat.

A Rumour prevails, that we shall shortly undertake something on the Rhine; but how, or for what Purpose, is what we cannot pretend to say any Thing about.

On the 10th the Court received an Express, with Advice, that on the 6th the Infant Don Philip arriv'd with his Army before Chateau Dauphin, which is the first Place in Piedmont; and that the First Column of his Troops, with the Miquelets at their Head, had begun their March over the Mountain, in order to enter that Way into the Plain below. The same Letters say, that the Barbets, or Persons of that Country, had abandoned three Posts, and set Fire to their Magazines. This News gives us Reason to hope, that we shall very soon have an Account of his Royal Highness's having enter'd the Plain of Turin; tho', to say the Truth, the work is not yet past; and it must be likewise acknowledged, that there is a Malignant Fever in the Army, which carries off Abundance of People.

Actions 2140.

Letters from Chambery dated the 1st of Octob. N. S. inform us, that the Court of Spain finding it absolutely impossible to carry on so expensive a War as this in Italy has been for three Years past, has, at last, resolv'd to put all Things to the Hazard, and the Infant Don Philip is actually march'd to force a Passage into Piedmont immediately; so that an Action must necessarily ensue, and decide all Disputes in this Part of the World.

Col. Mentzell, who has already made himself famous by so many Exploits, is preparing to live all this Winter at the Expence of the French; and, for that Purpose, has actually levied a Corps of Hunters in Franconia, Saxony, and Bohemia, in order to assist his Hussars, and to clear the Plunder, Baggage, and Ammunition.

The Crawley Pink, Capt. Naughton, was taken the 18th Instant, in Sight of this Bay. He made a glorious Defence, having fought twelve Privateers for five Hours. It is the general Opinion, that he expended all his Ammunition; or that he is killed, or wounded mortally. Our Men of War were at an Anchor in this Bay, during this warm Engagement.
